

Kalamata Attic Drama and Oratory Conference

International Conference on Attic Drama and Oratory

21-24 October 2015, Kalamata

Department of Philology

University of the Peloponnese

The Department of Philology at the University of the Peloponnese is pleased to announce the organization of the Attic Drama and Oratory International Conference with the theme:

Poet and Orator: A Symbiotic Relationship in Democratic Athens

This four-day conference, as well as marking the inauguration of the Centre for Ancient Rhetoric and Drama (C.A.R.D.) and the 10-year anniversary of the Department of Philology, University of the Peloponnese, will explore the close and interdependent relationship between the dramatist and the orator in the context of Athenian democracy by bringing together international scholars with expertise on different aspects of ANCIENT GREEK THEATRE AND ATTIC RHETORIC. We seek to raise questions about how tragic and comic plays composed in the classical and postclassical periods respond to the materiality of political conflict as this is eloquently and vehemently expressed in Attic speech-making. It is perhaps not surprising that the striking interdependence in interests and motivations of Athenian dramatists and orators should take centre stage in this wide-ranging debate about the special ways in which Greek drama of the fifth and fourth centuries was widely cross-fertilized not only by figures of language and rhetorical tropes but also by the social and political significance of oratory and rhetoric. More than this, this conference is envisaged as part of the general effort, almost unanimously acknowledged as valid and productive, to explore the impact of formalized speech in particular and craftsmanship rhetoric in general on Attic drama as a moral and educational force in the Athenian city-state. It is our contention that both poet and orator seek to deepen the central tensions of their work and to enlarge the main themes of their texts to even broader terms by investing in the art of rhetoric, whilst at the same time, through a skilful handling of events, evaluating the past and establishing standards or ideology. This conference, therefore, seeks to generate significant attention to the unified intentions of the dramatist and the orator to establish favourable conditions of internal stability in democratic Athens, as well as bringing into clearer focus the notion of drama and oratory as important media of public inquiry and critique.

Conference Organisers:

Andreas Markantonatos, Head of Department, Director of the Centre for Ancient Rhetoric and Drama

Eleni Volonaki, Deputy Director of the Centre for Ancient Rhetoric and Drama
